DONOR PRIVACY POLICY

The National Security Archive Fund, Inc. ("the Archive") deeply values the contributions of the many individuals and charitable foundations that support its work. To protect the privacy of its donors, the Archive will not sell, trade, or share donor contact information that it collects with any other organizations and will not send mailings on behalf of other organizations. If donors wish to remain anonymous, they have the option for their gifts to be listed as anonymous donations on, or excluded from, any lists of donors that the Archive may publish, except to the extent that the law requires the Archive to maintain or disclose donor information. This policy may be updated from time to time.
