MEMORANDUM FOR: THE PRESIDENT
FROM: JACK MARSH Jack
SUBJECT: Background on Covert Operations in Chile

It is my view that there is some background information that you should consider in addition to the points contained in the decision paper. These are matters that I mentioned to you briefly. In my opinion they are significant and should be considered in any decision you might make.

First, there is division among those in the Coordinating Group on Intelligence Activities. This division, in some instances, is reflected by subordinates. These differences arise over several key points set out below:

1. The point is made by Hyland, Assistant Secretary of State for Intelligence Matters, that much of the information to be covered in the open hearings is contained in the assassination report which the Select Committee has indicated they would like to publish. Hyland is one of the three persons from the Administration who has read the report.

2. Hyland indicates the Secretary of State and former CIA Director Helms have given the Committee, apparently in Executive Session, this evidence. It must be assumed this testimony is contained in the assassination report.

Additionally, there is some material from Nixon in possession of the Committee which spells out this operation.

3. In a rather surprising change of attitude, Hyland, in the Thursday morning meeting, began to speak in terms of the value of giving the Committee as much as we can in order to ride out as quickly as possible this adverse period which should end shortly and thus get the hearings behind us.

4. Former Ambassador to Chile, Korry (retired) is apparently a source of great concern to State as a witness before the Select Committee.

Apparently his appearance will be highly damaging inasmuch as he is knowledgeable and able.

5. Likewise there is great concern about the public testimony available to the Committee from a former military attache "who knows the whole story".

6. David Phillips, a former CIA official, who was involved in the Chile operation, will have to be put on notice that he is bound by his secrecy agreement in order to prevent him from testifying in open session.

7. These anticipated revelations in public hearings by former United States officials engaged in the operation appear to be raising a question as to whether it may be necessary to put an Administration witness into the hearing to be certain the other side of the story is told. The fact that former officials testify is diminishing the force of the argument for "non confirmation" by the United States Government.
